I engaged Triple A Mine Services to assist with facilitating a Health and Safety Project from December 2009 until August 2010. The project was commissioned to identify operational needs and then develop the operational management functions for health and safety and training in order to underpin improvement in operational capability and effectiveness. The project was extensive and involved a large amount of research to understand the operational work methods, documented systems of work, company corporate standards, legislative requirements and levels of compliance. During this process I found Triple A Mine Services to be professional in their approach to building and then management of the project. I also found their resolve to deliver results, formidable and inspiring.

I would recommend Triple A Mine Services as a reputable service provider when dealing with issues relating to the health and safety management function, the training and competency management function and the emergency response management function. They provided great assistance to the operation through their no-nonsense approach to getting the job done and according to operation's needs. The relationship was successful in delivering the result the operation was looking for.

Recently Alan and I co-facilitated an OH&S Leadership Program for 20 Senior Safety Advisors. This is a testament to Alan's in-depth knowledge and experience in this area (including legal, systems and practical application perspective). His presentation, communication and group facilitation skills are second to none and helped make this a very successful program for the participants and the client. I highly recommend Alan's services and am happy to answer any queries.
